

Sex, Gender, and Society: Rethinking Modern Japanese Feminisms

Emory University, April 19 - 20, 2013

The Department of Russian and East Asian Languages and Cultures at Emory presents a conference on the diversity of Japanese feminist thought and activism, from the Meiji period to today. Scholars will speak on issues of motherhood and family, education and employment, sexuality, politics, and feminist theory.

The conference will include a keynote panel featuring the following speakers:

Vera Mackie (University of Wollongong)

Mizuta Noriko (Josai Int'l. University)

Barbara Molony (Santa Clara University)

Ueno Chizuko (Tokyo University)

This event is free and open to the public.

Sponsored by: The Emory Conference Center Subvention Fund, Northeast Asia Council of the Association for Asian Studies, The Hightower Fund, Halle Institute for Global Learning, East Asian Studies Program, and the Departments of Russian and East Asian Languages and Cultures, and Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies at Emory University

Please register at: http://halleinstitute.emory.edu/research/events\_conferences/japanese\_feminisms.html

Miwa Yanagi, Elevator Girl
House 1F, 1997
The National Museum of Modern Art, Kyoto