This book is a unique examination of qualitative research in the social sciences, raising and answering the question of why we do this kind of investigation. Rather than offering advice on how to conduct qualitative research, it explores the multiple roots of qualitative research – including phenomenology, hermeneutics, and critical theory – in order to diagnose the current state of play and recommend an alternative. The diagnosis is that much qualitative research today continues to employ the mind-world dualism that is typical of traditional experimental investigation. The recommendation is that we focus on constitution: the relationship of mutual formation between a form of life and its members. Michel Foucault’s program for “a historical ontology of ourselves” provides the basis for a fresh approach to investigation. The basic tools of qualitative research – interviews, ethnographic fieldwork, and analysis of discourse – are re-forged in order to articulate how our way of living makes us who we are, and so empower us to change this form of life.

Praise for the book:

“The sweep of the material is breathtaking. Few writers will be familiar across the whole range of theorists covered here! The Science of Qualitative Research should be made compulsory reading for students beginning a course in the social sciences, or entering a postgraduate and/or graduate research program in any discipline.”

– Andy Blunden

“In this critical mapping of the history of qualitative inquiry, Martin Packer soars majestically through an expansive epistemological terrain. Dissecting dualist contradictions he challenges us to take up the radical potential of postmodern approaches and revel in the emergent, co-constituted, interpretivist nature of the project. This extraordinary text manages to be both scholarly and accessible while offering a vision of a moral, emancipatory and transformative way of doing research.”

– Linda Finlay, the Open University, UK

“This book is badly needed in the behavioral and social sciences. Indeed, it should be required reading for any serious student of methods or methodologies. It is a veritable tour de force of the prominent figures, difficult problems, and imperfect solutions besetting the various modes of inquiry. Qualitative research was intended to cure many of these ills, but, as Packer so cogently argues, the hidden dualism of this investigative approach has prevented it from realizing its full potential, leading us to ignore or misunderstand not only important modes of inquiry but also vital forms of life. With this penetrating analysis as backdrop, Packer then reforges qualitative research as he demonstrates fresh ways of studying life and living, all in elegant, crystal clear, and accessible prose.”

– Brent D. Slife, Brigham Young University

To order this title at a 20% discount, please see the other side or order on-line at:

www.cambridge.org/us/9780521148818
CONTENTS:

30% DISCOUNT ORDER FORM
DISCOUNT CODE: SQR13
OFFER GOOD UNTIL SEPTEMBER 1, 2013

__9780521768870 Packer / The Science of Qualitative Research HB: List: $448.00 Disc.: $82.60
__9780521148818 Packer / The Science of Qualitative Research PB: List: $42.00 Disc.: $30.10

Publication: November 2010 436pp.

TERMS OF THE OFFER: All individual orders must be prepaid by check or money order or charged on American Express, Visa card or MasterCard (libraries excepted). The use of a credit card will expedite your order. Canadian residents, add 5% GST. Shipping and handling charges for North America are $6.50 for the first book and $1.75 for each additional book. Outside North America (only credit card orders are accepted) - $9.50 for the first book, $5.00 for each additional book (surface mail).

*All prices are in US dollars and subject to change.

of Copies

Total prices from above $

Add NY/CA Sales tax$

Canadians add 5% GST $

Add shipping charges $

Net Total $

[ ] Payment Enclosed $ ____ [ ] Visa [ ] Mastercard [ ] American Express

Credit Card Number ____________________________ Expiration Date ____________

Signature ________________________________________

Return to:
Order Dept. • Cambridge University Press • 100 Brook Hill Drive • West Nyack, NY 10994
Toll Free (800) 872-7423 / Fax: (845) 353-4141 / http://cambridge.org/us/psychology