Special Issue on “Language and the Self”
Guest Edited by Marie-Cécile Bertau

Introduction
Introduction: The self within the space–time of language performance 433
Marie-Cécile Bertau

Articles
On displacement 442
Marie-Cécile Bertau
A dialogical conception of concepts 459
Antonia Larraín and Andrés Haye
Writing: Movements of the self 479
Andrea Karsten
On interlistening and the idea of dialogue 504
Lisbeth Lipari
Exploring language as the “in-between” 524
Marie-Cécile Bertau
The ontology of the “in-between” and the genetic legacy in psychology 542
Cor Baerveldt
On movements of language—within self, of self, about self, and between selves. Commentary on language and self 561
Lakshmi Bandlamudi

Comments
Reading as a language event of the self: In conversation with Bertau, Lipari, and Karsten 576
Judith T. Lysaker
From within the thick of it: Human beings doing being human in languaged worlds 592
John Shotter
Theory & Psychology is a fully peer-reviewed forum for theoretical and meta-theoretical analysis in psychology. It focuses on the emergent themes at the centre of contemporary psychological debate. Its principal aim is to foster theoretical dialogue and innovation within the discipline, serving an integrative role for a wide psychological audience.

Theory & Psychology publishes scholarly and expository papers which explore significant theoretical developments within and across such specific sub-areas as: cognitive, social, personality, developmental, clinical, perceptual or biological psychology. It also publishes, and particularly encourages, work with a broader meta-theoretical intent, examining such issues as the conceptual frameworks and foundations of psychology, its historical underpinnings, its relation to other human sciences, its methodological commitments, its ideological assumptions and its political and institutional contexts.

Interdisciplinary analyses addressing psychological topics are welcomed. These may include (but are not limited to): the philosophy of science and psychology; cognition and intentionality; forms of explanation in psychology; criteria of theory evaluation; the social basis of psychological knowledge; the history of psychological theories and methods; the utilization of psychological knowledge, critical theory and methods in psychology; feminist theory and methods in psychology; and rhetoric and argumentation in psychological theory.

For a description of contents see the Editorial in Volume 20, Number 6, December 2010.)

Theory & Psychology addresses a wide range of psychologists and interested scholars from other disciplines. Articles are clearly written and a final version pdf after issue publication.

This journal is a member of the Council of Editors of Learned Journals

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

All submissions should be made online at the Theory & Psychology SAGETRACK website (http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/thpsyc). Please log on to the website. If you are a new user, you will first need to create an account. This is a 3-step system that is easily completed. Log-in information is sent to you via email immediately upon completion. Full instructions for uploading the manuscript are provided on the website. If you have already created an account but have forgotten your details type your email address in the ‘Password Help’ to receive an email reminder.

Submissions should be made via the Author Center and the ‘Click here to Submit a New Manuscript’ option. For questions on a general nature, you can use the ‘Get Help’ button at the top right of every screen. Further help is available through ScholarOne® Manuscript Central™ customer support at +1 434.873.2040 x167. If you would like to discuss your paper prior to submission, please contact the Editor, Hendrikus J. Stam, at the following email address: thpsyc@ucalgary.ca

Please ensure that your Microsoft Word or RTF document does NOT include a title page, an abstract, or page numbers; the SAGETRACK system will generate them for you, and then convert your manuscript to PDF for peer review. Furthermore, it is imperative that authors remove from their submissions any information that will identify their papers (e.g., full names, affiliations, email addresses). All correspondence, including notification of the Editor’s decision and requests for revisions, will be by email.

Please follow the journal’s style guidelines on the journal’s web page prior to uploading your manuscript: psychology.ucalgary.ca/thpsyc/ Theory & Psychology publishes exclusively in English. Papers must be original and not currently under review elsewhere. Normally articles are 5000-8000 words, but may be as long as 10,000 words depending on the subject matter. Notes or comments should not exceed 2500 words. Papers should be typed double-spaced throughout. US or UK spelling may be used.

The journal adheres to the publication style of the American Psychological Association. Authors are encouraged to consult the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th edition). All manuscripts require an abstract of 100-150 words typed on a separate page and about five key words.

References cited should be presented in the text by author and date and be collated into a reference list at the end of the article. Authors should supply a short biography of 50-75 words, with a full mailing address, an electronic-mail address, and phone and fax numbers.

Corresponding authors are responsible for obtaining permission from copyright holders for reproducing any illustrations, tables, figures or lengthy quotations previously published elsewhere.

Corresponding authors should send proofs of their article and a final version pdf after issue publication. If you do not have email access please contact the editorial office: Hendrikus J. Stam, Editor, Theory & Psychology, Department of Psychology, University of Calgary, Calgary, Alberta, Canada T2N 1N4 [email: thpsyc@ucalgary.ca]