University at Buffalo/SUNY Assistant Professor Tenure Track: New Literacies

For questions, please contact: Search Committee Chair, Dr. Mary McVee
EMAIL: mcvee@buffalo.edu; TEL: 716.645.1059 or 716.645.2458

The University at Buffalo/SUNY is seeking a vibrant new literacies scholar focusing on the science of learning to join our distinguished community of professors and students in the Department of Learning and Instruction in the Graduate School of Education.

Buffalo has been named as a top city for quality of life, affordability, and as an arts destination. Buffalo’s downtown and harbor front are in the middle of a vibrant resurgence. (Links below). UB SUNY’s largest research institution. Join us at UB during this exciting, dynamic time!

For this Assistant Professor of New Literacies/Learning Sciences position, the successful applicant with a specialty in one or more disciplinary areas will

- Have expertise in some of the following areas:
  - Research methods and practices in new literacies and the learning sciences
  - Integrating new literacies to engage students while addressing local, state and national standards
  - Research-based practices to assist professional development of new literacies to enhance learning
  - Practical applications of learning science theories to disciplinary education
- Develop a distinguished body of research
- Develop courses for online delivery in addition to the "face-to-face" format
- Teach 2 courses per semester to EdM and PhD students (e.g., Learning theories, Research Methods, Teaching Methods for new literacies and/or a discipline;
- Advise and supervise Ed.M. and Ph.D. students

Classification Title: Assistant Professor 10 Position Title: Assistant Professor of New Literacies/Learning Sciences
Posting Number: 1400612 Quicklink for Posting:
<https://www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=57429>

Buffalo Links:

Elmwood Village declared one of 10 Great Neighborhoods in the US: