

Funded by the Fogarty International Center of the National Institutes of Health

Dear Colleagues,

We are proud to introduce the new journal entitled “Ciencia Y Trabajo”.

The new journal is published in Spanish by the Scientific and Technological Foundation of the Chilean Security Association in collaboration with the journal Environmental Health Perspectives and the Mount Sinai International Training Program in Environmental and Occupational Health.

Ciencia y Trabajo and Environmental Health Perspectives share a common purpose of improving the field of environmental and occupational health by promoting scientific exchange. It is for this reason that Ciencia y Trabajo will publish Spanish translations of content from Environmental Health Perspectives that is deemed relevant to Latin American countries. In addition to providing the outstanding content produced by Environmental Health Perspectives to Spanish-speaking audiences, Ciencia y Trabajo will also serve as a forum where original Spanish-language research can be published and distributed.

This new journal is in a growing phase. We plan to expand international representation in the Editorial Board and develop strict guidelines for the peer-review process. Please join us in this exciting new opportunity! We ask that you consider Ciencia y Trabajo as a place to submit your research publications and hope to hear your comments and recommendations for the future of this new journal.

Thank you,

Dr. Luz Claudio
Mount Sinai School of Medicine

